

JULIE BRIGGS

Julie Briggs was born in Australia and moved to Scotland in 1971. She trained as a classical violinist and played with the Scottish National Orchestra and the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra.

Julie took up painting when her children had grown up and has been painting enthusiastically ever since. She paints in oils and gains her inspiration from the Scottish landscape and from around her home on Loch Lomond. Julie also paints and travels regularly with a group of artists based in Stirlingshire.

Julie has exhibited in Glasgow, Central Scotland and London and is a member of the Glasgow Society of Women Artists.